FACTS

Background

9. Since 2014, the United States and its coalition partners (the “Coalition”) have combated the Islamic State in Iraq and Syria (“ISIS”)—also known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant, Daesh, or Da’esh—as part of “Operation Inherent Resolve.” See, e.g., Operation Inherent Resolve, U.S. Department of Defense, <https://perma.cc/9DUW-3PWB>.

10. The U.S.-led Coalition conducted approximately 34,706 strikes between August 2014 and the end of October 2019. Combined Joint Task Force, Operation Inherent Resolve, Monthly Civilian Casualty Report (Dec. 5, 2019), <https://perma.cc/8TAM-VN6Y>.

11. According to Major Shane Huff, CENTCOM spokesman, “[C]oalition forces work very hard to be precise in airstrikes” conducted as part of “Operation Inherent Resolve,” and “are conducting one of the most precise air campaigns in military history.” See Azmat Khan & Anand Gopal, The Uncounted, N.Y. Times Magazine (Nov. 16, 2017), <https://perma.cc/KS9C-YP3L>.

12. Coalition airstrikes, however, have resulted in documented deaths of numerous civilians. Journalists and non-governmental organizations have long questioned the discrepancy between the Coalition’s official tally of such deaths and their own findings. See id.

13. According to the Operation Inherent Resolve Combined Joint Task Force, at least 1,347 civilians were killed by Coalition actions since the beginning of Operation Inherent Resolve. Combined Joint Task Force, Monthly Civilian Casualty Report, supra. The publication of an allegation as “credible” or “non-credible” in Defendants’ monthly statements, see, e.g., id., means Defendants have generated documents related to their investigation into that allegation. Such documents may include, but are not limited to, credibility assessment reports and closure reports.

14. A credibility assessment, also known as a Civilian Casualty Assessment Report or CCAR, is Defendants’ preliminary formal assessment of a reported or alleged civilian casualty; its purpose is to assess whether it is more likely than not that a civilian or civilians were killed by a Coalition airstrike. A closure report is generated as part of a Commander-Directed Investigation (also known as an AR15-6), which is performed in cases where a positive credibility assessment requires further investigation, and that further investigation is complete.

15. On November 16, 2017, The New York Times Magazine published an article co-authored by Plaintiff titled “The Uncounted.” The article offers an unprecedented and in-depth look at the civilian death toll from the U.S.-led Coalition airstrike campaign against ISIS in Iraq and Syria. A true and correct copy of “The Uncounted” is attached hereto as Exhibit 1.

16. Plaintiff’s groundbreaking article was widely disseminated and prompted discussion both across the country and around the world about the civilian death toll wrought by Coalition airstrikes in Iraq and Syria, including among current and former U.S. government officials. Two former members of the Obama administration wrote:

[Ms. Khan’s and Mr. Gopal’s] New York Times Magazine piece [is] emblematic of a bigger story that unfortunately rings true . . . . The Times story is one of faulty intelligence driving wrong-headed assumptions that decimate innocent lives and embitter survivors. It is a story about how a legal and bureaucratic fog can make it almost impossible for tragic mistakes to come to light, too often leaving instead a false sense of comfort that such mistakes never happened at all. And it is a story about a policy that warrants honest discussion, and change.

Robert Malley & Stephen Pomper, An Accounting for the Uncounted, The Atlantic (Dec. 16, 2017), <https://perma.cc/Q446-U7HZ>.

17. Congress also took note of Ms. Khan’s reporting. Senator Patrick Leahy wrote an op-ed in The New York Times in response to “The Uncounted” that called on Defendants “to improve the accuracy of its own airstrike data and overhaul the often perfunctory way it investigates reports of civilian casualties.” Sen. Patrick Leahy, What We Owe the Innocent Victims of America’s Wars, N.Y. Times (Nov. 22, 2017), <https://perma.cc/ZY2M-3MSU>. Congressman Ted Lieu, also citing “The Uncounted,” sent a letter to former Secretary of Defense James Mattis noting that “the findings of the New York Times investigation suggest the coalition is not properly executing U.S. policy in terms of limiting civilian casualties and is not accurately reporting civilian casualties.” Letter from Rep. Ted W. Lieu to Sec’y of Defense James Mattis (Nov. 20, 2017), <https://perma.cc/6WBR-EV38>.

18. “The Uncounted” has received numerous awards, including the 2018 National Magazine Award in Reporting from the American Society of Magazine Editors, the Overseas Press Club’s Ed Cunningham Award for best magazine reporting in print or digital on an international story, the Hillman Prize for Magazine Journalism, and the Deadline Club Award for Magazine Investigative Reporting. See T Magazine and The New York Times Magazine Honored With National Magazine Awards, N.Y. Times (Mar. 14, 2018), <https://perma.cc/MNZ8-UFEU>; Overseas Press Club of America Announces Annual Award Winners, Overseas Press Club of America (Mar. 21, 2018), <https://perma.cc/L42L-FPL5>; Judges’ Comments from the 2017 Awards, Deadline Club (May 22, 2018), <https://perma.cc/HL4J-VRPK>.

19. Since publication of “The Uncounted,” Ms. Khan has continued to research civilian casualties from the ongoing U.S.-led “Operation Inherent Resolve” for purposes of her reporting. As detailed below, in connection with that research, Ms. Khan has submitted additional FOIA requests to Defendants; eight of those FOIA requests are at issue in this suit.
