PRESENTER

Andrea Mitchell, the veteran NBC News chief foreign affairs correspondent, is also the host of MSNBC's "Andrea Mitchell Reports," where she interviews top newsmakers on politics and foreign policy every day. Mitchell also covers foreign policy, intelligence and national security issues for NBC News.

In 2005, Mitchell authored Talking Back, about her experiences covering five presidents, Congress and foreign policy.

An Emmy Award-winning correspondent, Mitchell has also received the Goldsmith Career Award for Excellence in Journalism from the John F. Kennedy School of Government. In 2004, the Radio-Television News Directors Association honored Mitchell for her contribution to protecting the First Amendment. She was selected by the National Press Foundation for its Excellence in Broadcast Journalism award.

Among her past assignments, Mitchell was NBC News' chief White House correspondent during President Clinton's first term. She has also served as NBC's chief congressional correspondent and energy correspondent. Mitchell first covered the White House during both terms of the Reagan presidency, traveling with President Reagan to summits with Mikhail Gorbachev and other world leaders.

Mitchell received a bachelor's degree in English literature from the University of Pennsylvania, where she serves as a trustee and a member of the Executive Committee. She serves on the board of the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation and is a member of the Gridiron Club and is on the board of America's Promise Alliance.

Mitchell is married to former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan and resides in Washington, D.C.
